

MONROE TO INSTALL NEW STREET LIGHTS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Monroe, Wis., March 1.—Within the next few months it will no longer be necessary for people visiting the business district after dark to carry a lantern, or content themselves with what light shines out of the store windows. With the advent of spring the city council has decided to install a system of ornamental street lighting. Bids for the improvement will be advertised for at once. Although the improvement has been under way several times in past years, each time it has been abandoned. The city council decided the time had come to install the new system, but held it would not be complete unless the city square was also surrounded by street lights. A committee waited on the county board, then in session, to ask for a franchise to install the lights. The county board refused to do anything in the way of granting a franchise. The city council then decided to install the lights on the promise of the city to maintain the same. Since then it has been discovered under the state law that a city is able to force the installation of the lights, and it is expected this step will be taken if found to be necessary.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, March 1.—Hans Sorenson, who died last Sunday, was born in Sweden, Norway, March 25, 1845 and was seventy-one years of age. He came to Clover Valley when a small boy and later moved to the Bluffs. He lived in the city for many years on the present farm. In 1887 he was married to Martha Olson, who died in 1887. Later he married Esther Dutton, and five children were born to them, two having died in infancy. Funeral services were held today at one o'clock from the house and at two o'clock from the First Evangelical church, Rev. N. C. A. Garrison officiating.

URGES COMMONS FOR STATE UNIVERSITY

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., March 1.—It is especially for the 2,500 non-fraternity men of the university who need some place to gather, that a bill for a commons at the University of Wisconsin is being introduced today. Such a commons at the earliest possible date. Such was the statement of Dr. Scott H. Goodnight, dean of men, of the University of Wisconsin in a statement today.

"The fact that there are no club rooms or gathering places for non-fraternity men drives them to billiard halls, bowling alleys, and even saloons. Such a condition is bad because, even if the pool rooms sell malted milk instead of beer, they are places where petty gambling, betting and other undesirable things are indulged in." A union building with rooms for meetings and gatherings would do away with the gambling and other undesirable things that characterize the places that now exist. It would be a headquarters for all the men on the campus and would be a great benefit.

The question of building a new home for the Union is at present being strongly discussed among the students. Last year the Union made their home with the Y. M. C. A. but with the extension of that institution the Union has been forced to move its quarters to a small room where very few activities can be carried on.

WHATCHAMA COLUMN

Butter.
Why do restaurants keep up the pretense of serving butter?
In the first place the stuff they serve would be an insult to any self-respecting creamery; and in the second place they don't serve enough of it to make worth while chasing with a knife.
A pat of restaurant butter these days is about as big as a germ and almost as visible.
It is so small, in fact, that it can stand in the middle of its chip and be a day's journey from the edge in any direction.
There was a time when restaurant butter covered a multitude of bread.

FEDERAL AID FOR STATES' CONTINUATION EDUCATION.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Milwaukee, March 1.—Wisconsin may get $10,000 a year or more from the new vocational educational bill if it is signed by the president following its passage by congress, says R. L. Cooley, director of the Milwaukee continuation school. The appropriation allowed Wisconsin would have to be divided among twenty-nine states, but Milwaukee would get the largest percent, it is said.

JANESVILLE MEETS EVANSVILLE TONIGHT

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Evansville, March 1.—At Magee's Hall this evening the local high school basketball team will face the hardest game of the season. Janesville will be their opponents and a victory over them means more than any other that can be won this season outside of the championship at the Whitewater tournament and perhaps a shot at the state honors when the district champs meet at Menomonee, the last of this month.

Janesville and Evansville are old rivals and each knows by experience that the other is a worthy opponent. The Evansville contingent will remember the lacing which they received last winter on the Janesville floor and their appetite for blood is cooled only by the "sixty to nothing" drubbing which was administered to them last fall on the gridiron. A victory this evening will mean a lot to the Evansville team and will serve to plant the jibes which Janesville enthusiasts are wont to cast at the present time. Inasmuch as the game is an important one, a record attendance is expected. Janesville is sure to be well represented and should be welcomed by a large body of enthusiastic supporters of our own team.

Word was received by telegram yesterday morning announcing the death of Frank Cushman of Taylor, Wisconsin, of this city and his death will be mourned by a large number of his friends in this city. FREIGHT ENGINE WRECK AT EDGERTON SIDING

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Edgerton, March 1.—A west bound freight engine on the passing track left the rails this morning near the water tank and plowed into a freight car on the siding. Fortunately no one was injured. The west bound passenger train was delayed until the freight train could be cleared from the main track. Later in the day the engine was pulled back onto the track. The rails spreading is thought to have caused the derailment.

LAST CALL-WIND-UP OF LADIES' WINTER APPAREL ONE DAY-FRIDAY ONLY

Madden & Rae Store News

We had hoped to have our new, large and beautiful garment department opened on our second floor in time for the showing of spring wearing apparel, but the many new coats, suits and dresses have come in so rapidly, and the rebuilding has progressed so slowly, that we are displaying these gems of fashion amid the old surroundings.

You will quite forget, however, the old surroundings in the admiration of the new merchandise. Our patrons tell us we are remarkably low in price. When shoppers will come and look and later come back again, we can judge for ourselves that our merchandise is being compared in a manner favorable to us.

A shipment of French kid gloves have just been unpacked having escaped the submarines and passed through the war zone safely. They are beautiful in style and manufacture.

The management is highly gratified with the response that has been given to his efforts to inaugurate a store service that is distinctive. Dollar Day was but one of many special sales that will offer values just as attractive.

The public learned yesterday that we backed up our slogan of "Truth in Advertising." We believe that the patrons of this store have a right to find exactly what they are offered.

We guarantee everything as represented for you must be satisfied at this store.

Do not wait until our opening to come in and inspect the new spring garments. They are worth viewing right now and as there are many exclusive styles, an early selection will be profitable.

A practice game of basketball last evening at the high school resulted in a victory by the first five by a score of over two to one. The team is in fine condition for the game with Columbus Friday night. The Columbus team are one of the strongest in this part of the state and a battle royal is promised the spectators.

LOTS OF RED TAPE TO BECOME A MARINE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Washington, March 1.—The solution of the paradox, "When is an American not an American?" has just been discovered by Benno Wieler, born in Nebraska, and more recently engaged as a farmer in Canada. Wieler went to Canada some years ago and, in order to obtain a patent on a farm there, became a naturalized citizen of Great Britain. A few weeks ago he returned to this country and tried to enlist in the United States marine corps, but was rejected as an alien. The secretary of labor was appealed to and decided that Wieler would be required to go through the same procedure as a foreigner in order to again become a citizen of the United States, which he did, and was enlisted today.

Wieder said he would not change nationalities again for a farm.

PEACE AND ECONOMY.

In 1800, over a century ago, Thomas Jefferson, whose hand had impressed itself upon the history of the confederated states when they were but the thirteen colonies, purchased that wonderful land west of the Mississippi river known as the Louisiana territory. It was a vast and far-reaching strip of land, and Jefferson, in the zenith of his position, sold it to the American commissioners for the paltry sum of fifteen million dollars.

Jefferson was a type of true democracy. His habits, his customs, while serving his two terms as president, all reflected the idea of the new nation's democracy. The Louisiana territory and glory from all administrative duties were not a burden to him. He was a true democrat, and his administration was "Peace and Economy." The vast Louisiana territory had been the shuttlecock in the hands of European rulers. Claimed by Spain, through the discoveries of De Soto, of the Mississippi and the explorations of the Spanish who came north from Mexico, traded to France for a treaty right and then back to Spain, and then back to France, who claimed the vast land of the Mississippi by right of exploration, the real ownership was in doubt.

Thomas Jefferson, wiser than his generation, saw that to split the power of England, who controlled New France, now Canada, on the north, and Spain on the south, with a danger of French interference in the Ohio valley, the United States must own this vast territory which extended northwest from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific ocean for a few trifling millions, and today the great west that feeds the world is the result.

Peace and economy were Jefferson's watchwords. He bought this vast strip of territory to preserve peace, to exercise economy in national affairs. He sent and tried soldiers, and Clark, honest and trusted soldiers, to explore this vast territory, and their report broke the backbone of the famous Aaron Burr conspiracy which would have split the United States in two and created a new republic west of the "Great Father of the Waters," which would have been a far greater menace that would have diminished the little republic of the Atlantic states much. Jefferson, France or Spain might have done. Can not our present national officials learn a lesson of peace and economy from Jefferson. The man who rode to his inauguration unattended, who shunned the pomp and glory of court effects, and whose table, while loaded with good, wholesome food, was never elaborated. The man whose true democracy made possible this nation of ours today and whose foreign policy was fixed in the belief: "America, first, last and always, despite any obstacles that may arise. Peace and economy were his watchwords. Let us follow his lead in these tremendous times.

OUR SOLDIERS.

Tonight the Second Separate Company of the W. N. G. are to have their first inspection as to acceptance by the Federal government as part of the military units of the nation. They are to hold an exhibition drill and inspection in the old Armory hall, to give them larger floor space for the maneuvers they expect to put on. While still a young company they have developed wonderfully and the citizens of Janesville should show their appreciation of the individual members' efforts by attending this inspection tonight. The company needs the encouragement and support of everyone and at this specially critical period in our history, its organization and the progress they are making is of material importance. The prospect that the local company will be deferred in a new day. Now that all the Wisconsin state guard, with the exception of individual units still on the Mexican border but ordered north, are at their home stations, the reorganization of the entire state guard to meet the federal requirements can be begun and carried out successfully. In this Janesville has a part.

THE CONSEQUENCE.

Evidently the United States is to pay the penalty for its efforts to remain neutral in the present struggle of the world. If press dispatches are to be believed, the plot to enthrone Mexico into the war on the side of Germany, with a promise of the return of the "lost Mexican territories" of Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, as a reward, the suggestion that Mexico act as mediator between Germany and Japan with the idea of securing the co-operation of the islanders in attacking the United States, proves that the Germans had looked upon the side of the submarine war knowing it would bring the United States into the conflict.

Of course the letters from official German sources, directed to the recent German ambassador at Washington, now in the hands of the president, may be referred to as "mere scraps of paper," still they exist and prove the plot existed. This may or may not be taken as a cause belli, but still it is a powerful weapon in the hands of the government to prove that despite all efforts on the part of those in power to prevent armed conflict, Germany was actually plotting seizure of American territory and urging war upon this nation.

The Chicago Herald discusses the action of congress by likening that body to a donkey, when it says: "Congress has its long ears to the ground. Congress neither is sure of itself, nor is an ally for its moral cowardice, does it claim it is not sure what the country wants to do. The country wants it to act and go home, the comforting reflection being that some of its members will not come back.

Those who have eaten the live weed of pacifism hate to give the president the authority he seeks and yet fear to refuse him. They hesitate. They obstruct. For what are they waiting? Do they want, before they act, that other Americans shall keep company with those two American women whose bodies at this moment are tossing in the icy waters of the Irish Sea?

"The last days of the session are doing little to recommend congress to the nation. The dying trend finds the representatives of the people without the courage to meet the future.

"Yet the 'over act' has come. The Lacombe's dead, few though they were, have joined the pitiful host carried down by the Lusitania. The Lacombe, unwarned, lacked only numbers to repeat the greater horror. Had international law been observed the two Chicago women who died horribly might be alive today. What does congress think of the Lacombe?"

Just what the next few days will bring forth are hard to say. The United States is not prepared for war, does not want war, but the time has come for some sort of definite action that will impress upon Germany and its allies that the American flag must and shall be respected. The wisdom of the federal government in withholding the documents it had in its possession since the German ambassador was given his passport and safe transit home, until his ship had actually sailed from the Canadian port and was actually outside the jurisdiction of the United States, shows that it was the intent to avoid the language of regulated action.

Even Bryan, the pacifist of pacifists, has announced that he is behind the president, in the present crisis, and the remainder of the "copperheads" who had assembled in Washington to prevent any action by congress find themselves bereft of a leader. It may encourage congress to play the part of men and take some definite action. Certain the disclosures as to the overtures with Mexico explain many actions of the German peace party in this country and the assurance with which they went about their work.

THE DEBT TO FOREFATHERS.

It is rather hard to get up much enthusiasm about our forefathers. Birthday celebrations of national characters are often well attended, and the patriotic remarks well received, if the dinner and other entertainment has been good. But it is not known that any audience ever heard the name of George Washington or any other patriot of his time. Yet our daily life is no doubt very different from what it would have been had Washington and his associates failed in their revolutionary attempt. To be sure, substantial freedom is a colony. Still its advance is probably largely due to the proximity of the United States. They have caught the flare back of our prosperity and freedom. They owe their advance likewise to the American spirit, which is much the same regardless of boundaries.

Had we remained a colony that American spirit could hardly have developed. We would have looked to the leadership of the Old World, and accepted its traditions with loyal submission. Political initiative would have been checked. When a community's civic ambition is dulled, it must also affect its industrial enterprise and the spirit of achievement. The success of the American revolution set free vast latent energy. The men who had triumphed over the first army of the world went home confident of ability to triumph over other adverse forces. It gave them the daring to explore the forest, subdue the wilderness, establish new communities, and build social and industrial institutions.

Had we remained a subject colony, it is quite possible that our great west today might still have been in the frontier condition it was fifty years ago. So George Washington and the rest of them are not mere names and historical fact, but an influence that has vitally affected our living conditions.

THE MERCHANT'S CAREER.

An interesting feature of the recent meeting of the National Dry Goods Association at New York, was the extending of honors to the ten oldest retail dry goods merchants in the United States. In the record of these men it was brought out that most of them were passing goods over the counter by the time they were fourteen or fifteen years old.

It is a remarkable record when a man begins supplying human needs at fifteen and keeps it up half a century. In a period when most people are changeable, moving around from place to place and frequently changing business and professions, the merchant located in one place and supplying faithfully the changing needs of that place, is one of the most permanent of old landmarks.

Were it not for his faithful service, many homes and many lives would go without daily comforts and conveniences. He is a main stay of public progress, and a substantial promoter of the growth of the community.

NEWSPAPER POSTAGE.

An effort has been made at this session, but was beaten by a close vote, to put through congress a proposition increasing the postage on newspapers. Probably some wise legislators think the publisher is so rolling in luxury at the present cost of paper that he will view calmly a proposition to soak him at the post office.

There is no more reason for increasing newspaper postage 50 to 100 per cent, than there is for raising letter postage to three or four cents. If anyone should pay increased costs, it is the magazine publisher, who sends enormous bundles of his literature all over the country at exceedingly low rates.

Most newspapers that go by mail do not travel a long distance. There are few handings of them and they take up car space only for a short time. The service is inexpensive to the government, and should not cost the publisher heavy. The publisher would be willing to pay increased costs when all other classes of postage users pay higher rates, and not before.

The farmers who have not been moved by the tales of children going hungry for lack of potatoes, are deeply stirred by the possibility that the potatoes may rot in the cellar.

Several more ranchmen have been killed by Mexicans, but people who expect to make money anywhere near the border must not complain at a little thing like that.

With those suffragist pickets surrounding the White House, it was clearly a mistake not to provide the executive mansion with a secret underground exit.

The public suffering caused by the prevalence of high prices suggests to many of the trust magnates that they also should be able to get more for their goods.

The price of vegetables is away out of sight but the farmer keeps on looking discouraged until he gets down out of sight behind the barn.

It is pretty hard for our people to be uneasy about the German menace now that they are assured there will be no baseball war.

As the result of the leak investigation, the speculative activities of the office boys will no doubt be severely condemned.

The popular idea of public improvement is for the municipality to spend a lot of money in front of your own house.

Another definition of international law is code that all other nations are strictly bound to keep.

On the Spur of the Moment

ROY K. MOULTON

TO MARCH.

Oh, March your blustering and blow at times is just a bit too hearty. You do be well behaved, you know. And then again you're rough and oh,

So rude a party!

You're full of boisterous winds and zips, Of slush and slides and snorts and sneezes, You're full of sloppiness and slips, We chase our lids and sprain our hips And curse your breezes.

Yet though many a prank you play And at times a bit of mischief, We like you when you come to say Old Winter's passing on his way, Forgent and toothless.

Your winds, your rains and every-thing, The bluster and the Lion of you. We do not like. But when you bring The first sweet little taste of Spring Gee, how we love you!

HAPPY THOUGHT.

Have a little bounce and you won't mind the bumps.

Childhood Always Do.

As their parents say, Mind and blind each "q." Never mark or carve on wood, Such as table-leaves, And remember when they should Use their handkerchieves.

Exasperation.

Exasperation is what prompts us to do very comical things, such as kicking vases off a piano or going into the cat by its upright tail and hurling it beyond the circumference.

Exasperation is very exasperating in ourselves and very mirthful in others. In a mood of intense exasperation a man will do things he would blush to do at other times. Men are more easily exasperated than women. Women are cunning at moving men to fits of exasperation and thus gaining their ends, whatever they may be. Exasperation is a very old friend. Some years ago in New Hampshire, his name is not recorded, nor his age. Two facts regarding him are recorded. That he died in a fit of exasperation, and that he was married.

Often Vice.

A man without a vice, is meeting, He never smokes, he drinks no malts. He is as good as he can be, He is so good he has no faults. He is so good he has no flaws, As virtuously through life he fares, And he but seldom frets because He is so good he has no cares.

So good and virtuous is he His list of virtues never ends. Yet he is as lonesome as can be. He is so good he has no friends.

OPPORTUNITY NEVER KNOCKS AT ALL WHEN NOBODY'S HOME.

The Pleasant Place to be, Is only pleasant place to be; The only things it seems to me That ever please the least, or cheer, Are any other ones than those That now are mine. The happy lot Is always certain, goodness knows, To be the one I haven't got.

The Daily Novelette

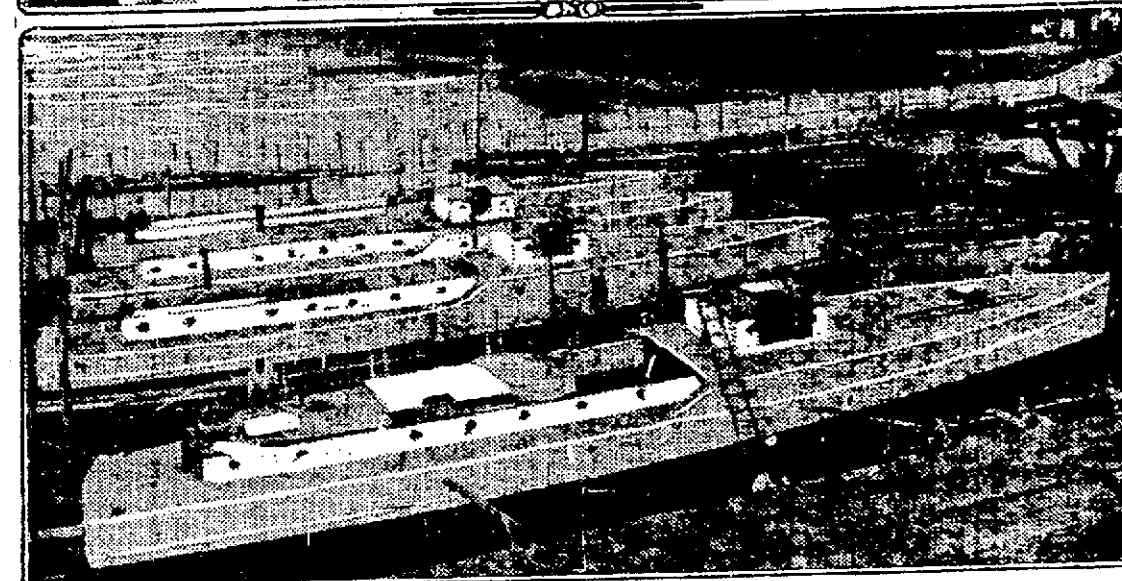

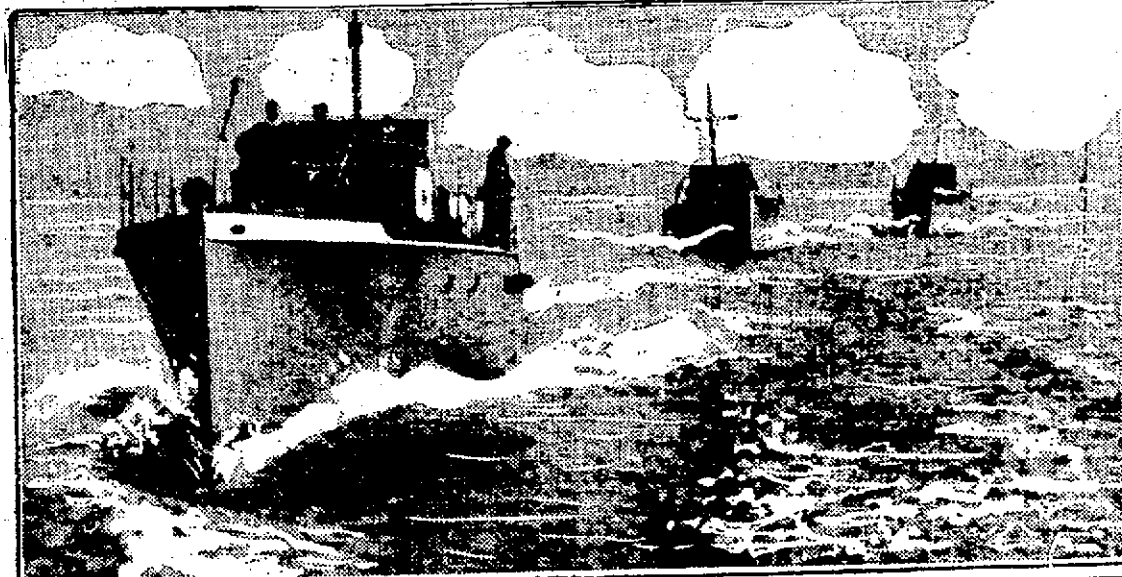

TAKE THAT.

Ever since Colonel Marta Beestem had told the extremely doubtful tale of his performing snail. After that used to write its name with a trail of slime on the glass wall of the aquarium, the long suffering club members had been unusually wary. "Boys," began the colonel genially, "did I ever tell you of the time I red breasted sharks chased me from Steal Beach to Atlantic City?"

"Yes!" came the chorusing answer. "Oh, did I? H'm. Well, that reminds me of the crocodile that I haven't told you that, have I?" "Yes!" they shouted. "H'm," remarked the colonel worriedly. "Well, then, about the rhinoceros that chased its tail just like a kitten in southwestern Fahn—"

"Yes! Yes!" "The colonel scratched his head. But surely, the one about the alligator that followed the snakes to Australia, when—"

"Yes! Yes!" "The colonel drew himself up

Submarine chasers in action, and in process of manufacture.

The submarine chaser, an American invention, is playing havoc with the U-boats. It has destroyed scores of the German submarines, and is England's main hope in combating the submarine menace. The submarine chaser is a long, low craft, 80 feet from stem to stern, with a beam 12½ feet and a speed of 19 knots per hour. It has a draught of only 4½ feet and a displacement of but 30 tons, yet with sea-keeping qualities that have never before been equaled by so small a craft. Each of these little vessels mounts a 3-inch rapid fire forward, a gun that hurls 12-pound shells at the rate of twenty a minute.

praudly. "Gentlemen, there never was any such alligator. I think I shall join another club!" And he marched out after carefully finishing his drink.

Oh! How the life of a switchman. It is mostly a merry one in idling hours, but when he hangs from the hand-iron of a box car with the mercury huddled way down into the little glass ball, those pleasant hours are but blurred memories in the face of grim possibilities which harbor injury and death. To the eye of the average fellowman who stands in his salary collecting in a steam-heated office and whose only excitement is to chase a street car half a block, the sight of the switchman clinging to the side of a box car or riding covetously seems one of thrills and dare deviltry. But to the switchman himself it is simply a monotonous doing of the same thing over and over again, with his only thrill in the moment before he drops under steel wheels or is caught between cars and his frame crushed to pulp. Those are the dangers he always faces, but in the self-confidence of the man who is agile and wiry, and quick-footed, he seems never to think of them.

All the same, the working time of the switchman in winter is hard. The wind blows and a speedy track in the prairie like valleys of railroad yards. Then consider the snow which may cake on the soles of his shoes and does not adhere to the iron of a hand rail. He is ever in danger of slipping, and his first precaution after getting a good grip is to scrape his soles free of the danger bringing element.

THRASHES INSULT OF FLAG: PROMOTED

Leo H. Luksich.

The sturdy patriotism of this Austrian born American has won him a gold medal, and promotion in the United States coast guard service. Luksich while on duty observed a steamer wiping his hands on the American flag. He pitched into the desecrator of Old Glory and gave him the worst beating he had ever had. Luksich was officially commended in orders by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrew J. Baskin.

COMMISSION HEARS PRINT PAPER MEN

(By Associated Press.)
Washington, March 1.—News print manufacturers who want the federal tariff commission to fix prices for their products today presented their case before the commission. The commission will hear the case tomorrow. Publishers are of the opinion that the commission will fix the maximum price of newsprint at $2.50 per 100 pounds for the intermediate paper, and $3.00 for the top quality paper. There has been no announcement whether the same prices will be set for all mills or whether prices will be based on the cost of production.

URGES ATTENTION TO FOREST PROBLEM

Washington, March 1.—Conservation of the country's forests is being urged in a statement issued today by Carl Vrooman, assistant secretary of agriculture. MORNING CHIMNEY FIRES GIVE DEPARTMENT RUNS

Two chimney fires gave the department morning runs between the hours of eight and twelve. The first was at the residence of E. W. Lowell on North High street. The second, a few minutes after twelve o'clock, was at the home of a fireman, Henry Kresin, the old Judge Phelps' place. Just below the convent on Lincoln street, and now owned by Sheboygan parties. The most damage occurred at the scene of the first fire.

Y. M. C. A. CAMPAIGN A DECIDED SUCCESS

DIRECTORS OF CAMPAIGN ANNOUNCE SUCCESSFUL TERMINATION OF QUEST FOR FUNDS.

HAVE SECURED $10,350

Receive Much Praise for Economical Manner in Which Campaign Was Conducted.

Officers of the Y. M. C. A. announce this morning the successful ending of their financial campaign. The total cash subscription of $10,350, in addition to this amount other contributions in the form of cancelled debts swell the grand total to over $10,350. The fund in the eyes of the donors, represents a great feather in the cap of this city. No longer will Janesville men have to admit that other cities can carry out such an enterprise, where this one fails. Out-siders, men familiar with Y. M. C. A. conditions throughout the country, have been very complimentary in their praise of the local campaign. Some regarded the raising of $10,350 to meet a deficit as impossible, but it was accomplished.

An outstanding feature of the campaign was that it was carried on entirely by local men. Practically every such enterprise in other cities has been under the direction of a paid campaign secretary, a man whose services cannot be secured for less than $500. The total expense of the campaign, but $75, used in advertising, printing, postage, telegrams, etc.

Directors of the association and men interested in the civic advancement of Janesville, who are anxious to bring about, feel that great credit is due the men who brought the campaign to a successful close. The Y. M. C. A. has been working here for the time to the thankless task of soliciting subscriptions. And the city of Janesville has responded most generously. Two hundred and ten people contributed to the fund, an average of fifty dollars per subscriber, which compared with that of other campaigns is exceptional.

Organization and system evolved by the directors of the campaign and faithfully adhered to by the individual workers has been one of the most important factors working for success. From beginning to end there was nothing haphazard; none of the promiscuous soliciting so often involved in such enterprises. Lists of prospects were carefully compiled, teams were organized, possible subscriptions estimated, and diligent effort made in an intensive, intelligent manner.

All the money donated was given by local people. Though several outside firms and individuals have been solicited, the money was secured without their assistance. In every case the subscriptions have come easily and willingly. People have realized the value of the association and have contributed generously to its support. All of the subscriptions have been made contingent upon the raising of the entire amount. With this end in view, the actual collection of the money will occupy but a short time.

A special treasurer, I. F. Wortendyke, has been appointed to take care of the campaign funds. He will pay all outstanding debts and will turn the balance over to the association, with an itemized account of expenditures, to be used in the operation of the Y. M. C. A.

C. R. Beattie, general secretary of the association, states that heretofore not a single department of the association has been free to plan its work as it should have been, because of straightened financial conditions. Too much of the money has been necessary to meet overhead expenses, and the association has been forced to work where there have been no definite plans made as to development, and will be where it stands when the debts have been liquidated, all predict that work will go ahead unhampered, that the field of activity will not only be widened, but the work will be made more intensive.

In line with this policy the association hereafter will conduct its membership on a strictly cash basis. Payment for a membership will be accepted only if it is made in cash.

"I am at a loss as to how I may adequately express my gratitude to those who have so generously come to the support of the association," said Mr. Beattie. "I cannot but feel that unusual credit is due the men who have made this work and development of the Y. M. C. A. in the future will be a tangible memorial to this generosity."

Bank Is To Install Bookkeeping Machine

Device Which Actually Keeps Books Will Soon Be Added to Equipment in Rock County Bank.

The Rock County National Bank will soon install a machine which will actually keep books. The Burroughs Adding-Subtracting machine is the name of this mechanical bookkeeper and it will be used for making entries on the bank's ledgers and for writing up depositors' statements. The machine is so simple that any one can understand best what this machine means to a bank, one must see it in actual operation.

The system is similar to that now in use in the most progressive banks in the country and marks another step in the Rock County National Bank's effort to give the most complete and satisfactory service to its depositors.

MYERS BARTENDER GETS $30 PENALTY FOR SUNDAY BREACH

Police Chief Caught Him "Treating His Friends" and His Attorney Enters Plea to Maxfield.

Fred Lippett, bartender at the Myers hotel, was fined thirty dollars and costs of thirty dollars in jail by Judge H. L. Maxfield in municipal court this morning when he pleaded guilty to the violation of a city ordinance "opening a saloon kept for the sale of intoxicating liquors on the first day of the week, Sunday." Lippett did not appear in court but was represented there by his attorney, W. H. Dougherty.

Chief Dougherty found the saloon open last Sunday afternoon with a number of local men being served with liquor. For various reasons the complaint was not drawn until this morning. Chief Maxfield signed it later and Judge Maxfield issued the warrant. Dougherty appeared in court just previous to noon and entered the plea of guilty.

Lippett's attorney asked the leniency of the court and prayed for a fine of not more than ten dollars. Judge Maxfield thought differently and said that the amount of thirty dollars was high to impose upon the poor results of disobedience. "I believe Manager Chas. Wild is desirous of running his hotel and saloon in accordance with laws and ordinances," Lippett violated his orders in opening the barroom on Sunday even if it was only for the purpose of treating his friends," he said he did not.

It was announced by Dougherty that the defendant would pay the fine some time this afternoon.

FATHER GOEBEL TO GO TO MONTELEO PARISH

Update Priest Will Come to Janesville Shortly—Has Relatives Residing in City.

It was announced today that the Rev. Father Goebel of St. Mary's Catholic church of this city and the Rev. Father Charles Olson of St. John's Catholic church of Monteleo, Marquette county, above Portage, will exchange parishes. It is understood that the change will be made immediately.

The Rev. Goebel's new parish is one of in excess of two hundred families. The Rev. Olson is a brother of the late Rev. O'Grady, 703 Hickory street, this city.

The change, as directed by Archbishop Messmer, has been rumored here for the past two weeks. Father Goebel was reported to be confined to his bed with illness today. He has been in charge of the local congregation for close to twenty years, during which time he has built its present modern and beautiful edifice of worship. The present parochial school is an institution made possible through the untiring effort of Father Goebel.

GERMAN WAR PLOT STRIRS WASHINGTON

It recalls that Count Von Bernstorff when handed his passports was very bitter in his protest to Germany but expressed a preference for asylum in Cuba.

It gives a new explanation to the repeated arrests on the border of German agents by American military authorities with being German intelligence agents.

Last of all, it seems to show a connection between the German secret proposal to neutrals that exports of food and munitions to the entente allies be cut off, and an intimation that he might stop the supply of oil.

What congress will do, and how members of congress who openly have sympathy for Germany, will react to the proposal to clothing the president with full authority to protect American rights will regard the revelations of Germany's machinations to attack the United States is the subject of the keenest interest.

Such a proposal as Germany instructed her minister to make to Mexico, borders on an act of war if it is not one.

Many Details Unrevealed.
The full extent of the evidence of Germany's plotting against the United States, gathered by American secret service, may become known only according to the course of the future relations between the two countries.

It is known that much of the operations of the German embassy and persons who were responsible to it never has been permitted to come out because officials preferred to guard against inflaming the public mind in the tense situation with Germany. The public amazement, which a full exposition of the evidence in the hands of the government would cause, cannot be overestimated.

Only Wednesday the council of national defense, created by act of congress, issued an appeal to all Americans to guard against inflaming the public mind in the tense situation with Germany.

"We call upon all citizens," said the appeal, "if untoward events should come upon us, to present to these allies, many of them born in this land, an attitude of neither suspicion nor aggressiveness. We urge upon all Americans to meet these allies in a friendly and unprejudiced manner, and with unprejudiced minds."

HEAGNEY'S BATTLE IN COURT OVER PURSE AND SIX DOLLARS

John Heagney was brought into municipal court this morning on a warrant for civil arrest to answer to the complaint of James Heagney that he took a purse and money belonging to the latter. The defendant Heagney entered a plea of not guilty. His case was set for March 7 at 10 o'clock. The complaint makes the allegation that Plaintiff Heagney dropped his purse from his pocket and that Defendant Heagney picked it up and used the contents, $6.15, for his own use.

OPTOMETRISTS HERE FOR EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE TODAY

Tonight's Public Dinner Will Be Interesting Educational Session.—One Hundred Delegates Here.

About one hundred optometrists assembled at the city hall this morning for the opening business session of the two days' convention of the scientific section of the state association. Following a meeting of the board of directors a reception was held for the visiting delegates who are here from all parts of the state.

The feature of the morning's meeting was an address by C. D. Waugh of Madison. Mr. Waugh is secretary of the state board of examiners, and in his talk this morning told of the work of that board, pointing out many things which could be used profitably by optometrists in their work.

The delegates held a fellowship luncheon before the afternoon session. The Illinois optometrists, made the leading address. Mr. Augustine's talk was in a measure introductory to the one he will deliver this evening at the public banquet, and was designed to illustrate how optometry can be put into the public schools.

"Investigations have shown throughout the country that one out of three school children suffer from some form of eye weakness. They are naturally retarded in their work, thus forming a drag on the entire school system. It is the duty of the optometrist to aid in the time and aid from the teacher." He spoke at some length of the method of examination adopted in Illinois and showed the great results that could be derived from a sincere co-operative effort on the part of the optometrists.

This evening's meeting in the form of a public dinner at the Grand hotel at six forty-five is to be the feature session of the convention. The entire conference is of an educational nature and the attempt is made to bring out to the parents and to the various educators of the city the crying need for a more adequate education of the children's eyes. A number of prominent local school men will make short addresses.

Public Invited to Attend Debates on Superiority of Holstein Cow for Local Farmers.

The agricultural departments of the high schools of Rock County are engaged in an interesting debate on the question, "Resolved, that the Holstein cow is the most profitable cow for the Rock county farmer." The debate will take place on Monday evening, March 5. Each school has two teams of three men each, selected from those studying agriculture.

The affirmative team consists of Francis McCue, Stuart Lamb and Alfred Schoof. This team will debate the Milton Junction team in the science room of the high school. The negative team consisting of Theodore Dewey, Ralph Morse and Richard Carroll will debate the Milton affirmative team at Milton in the high school building.

The Milton negative team goes to Edgerton and the Edgerton team goes to Milton Junction. The debates are open to the public, and it is hoped that all the interested parties raising will attend the meetings. The arguments presented by the boys will be the result of exhaustive studies, and it is likely that the audience will get some valuable information on these matters.

INAUGURAL THRONGS CROWD WASHINGTON

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Washington, March 1.—Washington—the nation's hostess city—again today is Mecca for the quadrennial inaugural pilgrims.

The pilgrims—hundreds of thousands of them—have been arriving, pouring in, literally deluging the city, for the past ten days.

At all times called upon to receive hospitably the nation's guests, the capital, at inaugural times, virtually "keeps open house." Hotels doubled, buildings, halls and even churches, are filled with cots and beds to house the throngs.

For ten days the town is turned helter-skelter, scrubbed and left, at the close of the national jamboree—prostrate.

HALF FARM LOAN ISSUE TO NEW YORK

Washington, March 1.—Federal farm loan board officials are understood to have arranged for placing the entire first issue of government farm bonds, amounting to $100,000,000, under management of a syndicate of bankers at New York and elsewhere at a rate of four and one-half per cent. The rates to be charged farmers on loans will range from five and one-half and one-half per cent.

ROCHESTER ARRIVES SAFELY AT GIRONDE

Bordeaux, March 1.—The American freighter Rochester has arrived at the mouth of the Gironde.

The Rochester and Orleans were the first American vessels to leave the United States for Europe after the breach of diplomatic relations with Germany. The two freighters, which sailed from New York on February 10 for Bordeaux and Orleans, reached the Gironde safely last Monday.

HOSTILE AEROPLANE IN TRIP TO ENGLAND

London, March 1.—A hostile aeroplane, reported today on Broadstairs, is announced officially. The announcement says that one woman was slightly injured.

Broadstairs is a watering place on the island of Thanet off the Kentish coast. It is one of the towns shelled by German destroyers on Monday.

DRINK WITH BLONDE COSTS HIM $1,600

La Crosse, March 1.—Albert Wengen, Montana young farmer, came here with a bank roll of $2,000. He met a bewitching young blond, suggested a drink, and went to the depot boarded a train and alighted in Milwaukee. When he woke up the beautiful blond was missing. So was most of his bank roll. Albert had only $400 left, but he has earned lots of things about the ways of some city women. The police here are looking for the girl and the other $1,600. So is Albert.

THE HEAVENS IN MARCH.

By J. S. Gillingham of the Columbia University Observatory staff.

Stars will be visible in the constellation of the Twins—this very slight movement relative to the neighboring stars illustrates the retrograde motion of the planets. Constellation of Crater, the Cup, far down on the southeastern horizon.

The March map can show us but only of the brighter planets, Saturn, which still occupies a place in the constellation of the Twins very nearly on the continuation of a straight line joining the brighter landmarks of this group, Castor and Pollux. Castor is the star nearest the north pole, Pollux is next and Saturn is furthest south. To the casual observer it may seem that Saturn has kept absolutely the same position among the stars for the past few months, but a more careful person will have noticed a very slight movement relative to the neighboring stars, and this month a particularly interesting phenomenon in this connection can be observed, it is the changing of the apparent motion of the planet among the stars, from east to west, or backward motion, but these technical astronomical terms require explanation, and they admit of one in simple language.

The Retrograde Motion of the Planets.

The motions of the planets in the heavens may be divided into three classes. First, the motion due to the daily rotation of the earth on its axis, and second, the motions seen by us which are due to the true movement of the planet in its orbit around the sun. The first of these produces the rising and setting of the planets, as well as all of the other heavenly bodies, giving them an apparent motion from east to west. This apparent motion has no tendency whatever to change the planet's position with reference to the neighboring stars, as they all partake of this motion in the same degree. It is the other source of motion that we are interested in now.

Every planet passes around the sun in its orbit in the same direction of rotation, which is from west to east. The earth has this motion in common with all the other members of the sun's family. This would naturally tend to make us see in the planets motion through the celestial sphere a continuous westward progress. If the planet in question is seen near a certain star, Regulus, for example, it will appear to move westward, the next night or after an interval large enough to make its motion visible to the eye we should find it to the east of the star Regulus. This would be a favorable time if the earth were stationary, but as a matter of fact the fact that determines the position of the planet in the heavens is its position in its orbit, and this position is also the position of the earth. The positions of both of the "sight line" from the earth to the planet makes us see the latter projected on the background of the sky at a particular point. Just as the house or part of a house that you see a lamp-post projected against depends upon not only the exact position of the lamp-post but also upon that of the pedestrian.

and changes as the latter moves. This sight line, then, has both its ends in motion, and the exact direction it will point depends upon the relative motions and speeds of the earth and the planet under observation. The speeds with which the planets move in their orbits depend upon their distance from the sun; the nearer they are, the slower they move. Saturn, therefore, moves slower than Earth, and though the usual motion of the planet through the sky is, as it ought to be, from west to east, sometimes the earth seems to get ahead of the other planet in such a way as to make Saturn move among the stars in the opposite or retrograde direction. Later the motion becomes direct again, and between the two the planet seems to stop and remain stationary. Saturn will be thus stationary on March 25.

The Fixed Stars.

Far down on the southeastern horizon has risen the constellation of Crater, the Cup, the Goblet of the god Apollo. In the east the Virgin stretches her great length across the horizon; this constellation is the picture of the sun during the time of harvest, though the group itself is, because of the proximity of the sun, naturally invisible. The figure of the Virgin is easily identified with Ceres in turn goddess of plenty. The Greeks in turn adopted the symbol from other astronomers and religions. One guess at the middle of the constellation Spica is that it was meant to represent the head of this female goddess on the body of the neighboring constellation, Leo, the Lion.

The group Virgo is itself of great interest, for it is the picture of the heavens as it would appear to the eye of a person over five hundred years ago. The constellation contains also a beautiful white first magnitude star, which rises just after nine o'clock on the first date of the map and therefore could not be shown. This is Spica, the ear of grain the goddess holds. It is known to have a great part in the ancient symbolic religions. Spica is a double star; what we see as one are really two stars close together, so close that neither the naked eye nor the most powerful telescope yet constructed can show the two separate components. But we know without the slightest doubt that there are two components, and this information is provided by the spectroscopic, which in many ways affords a more keen instrument for analysis and observation than the unaided telescope.

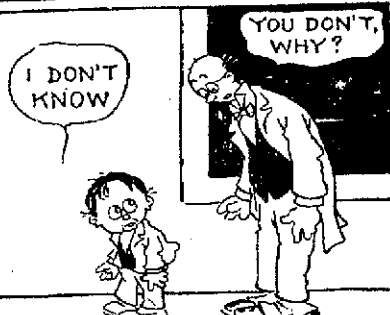

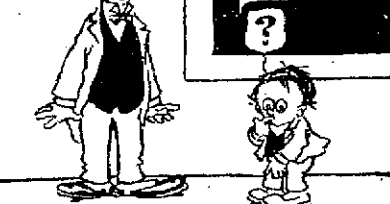

The spectroscopic analysis of the light from Spica shows us not only that the star is double but furthermore that the Spica system is approaching the sun at a rate of 42 miles per second. We do not yet know the actual distance from us, for no angle measuring device so far produced by modern science can measure the extremely small change in direction of the star produced by the orbital motion of the Earth.

NEWS NOTES—MOVIELAND

In "Betsy's Burglar," a feature for release early in March, Constance Talmadge takes the part of a boarding house slave with great aspirations. Oscar Schiltz, the grocer's boy is in love with her, but she awaits her Prince Charming. A handsome young lodger arrives at the house and Betsy promptly falls in love with him. He happens to be the heir to a large estate, but is unable to gain possession owing to some crooked work that an attorney is trying to put over. Meanwhile Oscar, the grocer's assistant graduate from a correspondence school for detectives and in looking for opportunities to try his metal, becomes implicated in events affecting Betsy and her Prince. Betsy is kidnapped by some desperadoes and tortured by them in an effort to make her disclose the whereabouts of some jewels. Oscar mixes in, but is soundly thrashed. In the end Betsy's star boarder comes to the rescue, and all ends happily. Kenneth Harland plays opposite Miss Talmadge, and is said to have scored heavily in his initial screen performance.

MYER'S THEATRE.

People who are curious to see the effect of submarine warfare such as has been carried on by the European adversaries almost within sight of the American coast will be given opportunity to see this in "The H. Civilization," which comes to the Myer's Theatre for three days for in this mammoth production is shown the actual operation of the submarine under water, the firing of the torpedo and the sinking of an Ocean liner loaded with women and children.

Enid Markey who plays one of the leading roles in Thos. H. Ince's great feature film "Civilization" which will play at Myer's Theatre Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

This spectacular scene, staged months ago by Mr. Ince with the aid of the United States government, came as a great prophesy of what is actually occurring along the Atlantic coast these days.

In "Civilization," the spectator goes down to the bottom of the ocean in a submarine and sees just how it is managed. He sees the death dealing torpedo forcing its way through the water, beholds the awful crash as it strikes the big liner, sees the ship on fire and hundreds of men, women and children hurled into the ocean. It is a spectacle in itself well worth the price of admission to this big production.

Heart and Home Problems

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I have been going with a young man for about seven months and recently we parted. He invited me to go with him and I refused. Would it be better for me to accept an invitation from another young man?

(2) I am engaged to a young man who is poor. At a dance given here recently I met a rich young man who I liked very much and who is well-to-do. My parents favor the rich man and I have learned to love him. Would you advise me to give up the poor young man?

(3) What is your opinion of a young lady who would elope with a young man from a neighboring town to stay at her home for a night?

Answer: A. J. If you don't mind having the feelings of the young man who asked you first, it will be all right to go with the other boy. Usually when a girl does such a thing she shows the first young man that his attentions are not desired.

Since you only consider the first young man in a selfish way I would advise you to give him up. You do not love him or you would not think of the other man's money.

I think such a thing concerns the young lady herself and her mother. If the boy has been invited by the mother to stay, it is all right.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl twenty-one years old and I am going with a young man twenty-five years old who works in another city. I love him dearly. He tells me he loves me very much and he even writes in his letters that he loves me. I want to tell him when he says this, but I

Marjorie and Mollie Exchange Important Secrets. "Isn't this cozy?" Mollie lay back in her low rocker in front of the blazing hearth. "I am glad my house is going to be like this. I tell in love with it the first time I saw it; that night we were here to dinner."

She smiled up at Marjorie's face. "And your house is coming on nicely. I can't wait to get into my own home."

"Why, yes, but it seems so slow. I can't wait to get into my own home. I have an eager note in the voice."

"Every woman has that longing for her own home planted in her at birth, I suppose," laughed the girl. "No wonder the girl who made the sewing machine."

"What are you making?" asked Marjorie, bringing her chair up beside that of Mollie.

"See!" Mollie held up a tiny garment. "I thought I would enjoy sewing on these things where there was some one I could talk to about them."

"How fine!" Marjorie stooped and whispered something in Mollie's ear.

"Really?" What good times we can have sewing together," exclaimed Mollie. "I have wanted to talk to someone, some woman, and of course I can't talk to Julia. Isn't she sweet? I love her dearly. She has been devoted to me."

"And you can't talk to Clyde's mother?" asked Marjorie, looking keenly at the girl to see the effect of her question.

"Oh, no," she stopped. "I am afraid she does not like me; has not forgiven me for marrying Clyde," she added after a pause.

"Forgive me?" repeated Marjorie in surprise. "What has she to forgive?"

"He is the only boy, you know, and she loves him better than any other else on earth, and now she thinks I have taken him away from her."

"Why, he is right here. You are to live in Fairport," exclaimed Marjorie. Mollie smiled a faint little smile.

"You do not understand. Clyde has no eyes for anyone else when I am around, she says. I even asked Clyde to pay more attention to his mother and less to me when we were with them, but that made him suspect that she had been saying something to me. I did not want him to know that, so I submitted. Oh, dear!" She sighed a tremendous little sigh.

"You ought not to have this to stand now of all times," burst out Marjorie angrily. "You tell Clyde and have him take you away."

"Oh, no!" The tone was brightened. "I could not do that. It is a little town and everything one does is commented upon." Her cheeks were scarlet. "People would say I was a scold. I could not get along with Clyde's family, and really they are lovely to me. Worse than all that it would make a breach between Clyde and his mother and it would hurt that blessed man, his father. I never saw anyone so lovely as he is, if only I could make her like me."

"The brown eyes filled with tears and the little chin quivered," exclaimed Marjorie, throwing herself down on her knees by Mollie's side and putting her arms around her. "You tell me all about it. Perhaps I can help you. At any rate, I will ease you to talk it all over with someone who sympathizes with you, and can be trusted with your troubles." (To be continued.)

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

GUELPA'S.

A correspondent has favored us with a translation from a French abstract of a treatment for various conditions in which toxic or poisonous elements of the system are the chief factor. It is known as Guelpa's rejuvenation treatment. It deserves a place in the same class with the Wier, Mitchell, and other methods of treatment.

It is not what our correspondent and many thoughtful physicians call "starvation," but a fast. It is not a fast in the ordinary sense.

Some of the ailments for which fasting is advised by Guelpa are gout, diabetes, obesity, cardiac and renal disease (heart disease and Bright's disease), intestinal affections, skin diseases, biliousness, arthritis, sick headaches.

One may fast from one to eight days. Such fasts are remarkably effective in diabetes, even for weak and very ill patients. The first two or three days are hard.

After the first day the patient is comfortable. Of course cool water is taken plentifully.

Guelpa enumerates various effects of a fast, such as cessation of action of the digestive system, reduction of high blood pressure, regulation of pulse, increase in hemoglobin, diminution of perspiration, better sleep and the sleep becomes more refreshing.

It is a clearer and more active mind, and easier breathing, relief of pains in joints, accentuation of vision.

Among the inconveniences are a dizzy or weak sensation, false weakness, a feeling of fatigue which is relieved by a short sleep, increased sensitivity to cold, and sometimes dull headache which demands a cathartic.

Fasting must be wholly freed from the idea of starvation in the mind of the patient. The horror of starvation is almost as deeply fixed in our mind as the horror of snakes, and about as groundless.

A CONTRAST.

What an interesting contrast between the Now and Then, is the inside of a typical summer cottage thirty years ago and of a typical cottage of today!

The other day the question of what to do with a superfluous piece of furniture came up in a family circle where I was visiting.

"Can't we put it in the living room at the cottage?" suggested the elderly mother, who still clings to the old-school idea that a summer cottage should be furnished with the castaways of a winter home, "we need another chair there."

"Goodness, no," said the daughter, "that would just spoil it! Why you know Mocher, everything in the living room is Mission."

Don't You Remember The Cottages You Used to Visit?

As they spoke, before my mind came a vision of their cottage, and then of the cottages I used to be invited to when I was a little girl.

Their living room is furnished, as she says, entirely in Mission. There is a low center table, rugs on the floor, hangings at the windows. The pictures on the walls are few and in good taste.

Their dining room is much like the dining room in their home except that the round table and chairs are of Mission instead of mahogany. The dishes are an inexpensive but attractive set in blue.

Of course you know what the living room of the typical cottage of thirty years ago—and of many survivors of that epoch—is like.

Surplus articles about the house may easily be turned into cash by selling the people through the want ad columns.

SHEBOYGAN TO HAVE CITY'S VISITING NURSE.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Sheboygan, March 1.—A school nurse, to look after the health and physical development of school children, will be appointed by the school board here. It will be her duty to visit the schools regularly and examine the pupils for adenoids, tonsillitis, or other ailments.

It is expected that this attention to sub-normal children will improve their school records.

WHATCHAMA COLUMN.

Jonah. Jonah was a very indigestible gentleman. The whale deserved a lot of credit for swallowing him. He may have been a fine prophet, but he was a bum square meal. For three days and nights he scratched, kicked and pummeled himself, even with a super cotter, unless things are just so, the tendency to carry all the forms and conventions of city life into the country, are bad.

Household Hints

YOUR CANARY.

If your canary or bird has run out of the bowels, put a rusty nail in its drinking water and the trouble will soon disappear. If you think your bird has lice, spread a white cloth over the cage at night and if the cloth has little red specks on it in the morning, you are assured that it has lice.

Never allow your bird to be in a draft when shedding, as it is the reason so many people lose their pets in the spring of the year.

The finest thing in the world for a canary is a piece of fat bacon covered with red pepper and tied in the cage so the bird can reach it.

MEATLESS SOUP.

Potato Soup.—Pare and cut into dice enough potatoes to make about two quarts. Cover with water, season with salt and pepper and put on to boil, which will require about fifteen minutes. Melt a lump of butter (about the size of a hen's egg) in a skillet, add tablespoon of flour and brown. Then thin with a little water, stir smooth and soup. Let boil up once and serve.

Corn Soup.—One can corn, one pint boiling water, one pint milk, one slice onion, two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, salt and pepper. Chop corn, add water, simmer twenty minutes, rub through a sieve. Add milk with onion, remove onion, add milk to corn, thicken with butter and flour mixed together. Add salt and pepper.

Baked Bean Soup.—Three cups cold baked beans, three pints water, two slices onion, two stalks celery, one and one-half cups stewed strained tomatoes, two tablespoons butter and two tablespoons flour, salt and pepper. Put beans, water, onion and celery into saucepan, simmer thirty minutes, rub through sieve, add tomatoes. Season to taste, thicken with flour and butter.

Lettuce Soup.—Two and one-half cups stock, two heads lettuce cut fine, two tablespoons rice, one-half cup milk, one-fourth tablespoon onion, chopped fine, one tablespoon butter, one egg, nutmeg, salt and pepper. Put in butter, add lettuce, rice and stock. Cook until rice is soft, then add milk, yolk of egg, nutmeg, salt and pepper. Let just come to a boil.

Remove outer leaves of lettuce, using only the tender part.

40c FOR HAIRCUT IN MINNEAPOLIS NOW.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 1. —The high cost of living went higher in eighteen hair barbers' shops today when men with hair paid 40c to have it cut, and paid 20c for shaves.

RICE DISHES.

Rice and Cheese Fritters.—One cup cold boiled rice; add two tablespoons milk; when soft add one beaten egg and one-half cup sharp cheese grated. Beat well. Add tablespoon of flour and teaspoon baking powder. Drop small portions into hot butter or deep fat and cook quickly.

Rice Croquettes.—One pint cooked rice, two three tablespoons milk, three tablespoons butter, one-half teaspoon salt, white pepper, cayenne, one egg, two teaspoons chopped parsley.

Warm rice in double boiler with enough milk to moisten it. Add butter, seasoning and beaten egg; cook until egg thickens. Spread mixture on a plate. When cool shape into cylinders, dip in dried bread crumbs, egg, and dried bread crumbs again. Cook in deep fat, drain, garnish and serve.

Sweet Rice Croquettes.—To make sweet rice croquettes, omit white pepper, cayenne and parsley; add two tablespoons powdered sugar and grated rind of one-half lemon. Shape in form of nests. Roll in dry bread crumbs and egg as above. Fry, drain, place a cube of jelly in each nest and serve.

Rice Dainty.—Three-fourths cup cooked rice, three-fourths cup fruit cut into pieces, three-fourths cup powdered sugar, three-fourths cup cream whipped.

Mix rice, fruit and sugar, fold in whipped cream. Pineapples, shredded or diced; bananas, cut into pieces (not sliced); dates, seeded and cut into pieces, or cooked apricots, are desirable fruits for this dessert.

SANDWICHES.

One cream cheese (four ounces), tablespoon cream or condensed milk, two tablespoons chopped pimento, one-fourth tablespoon salt, sprinkle of cayenne.

Rub cheese smooth with cream, add salt and cayenne, when well mixed add pimentos. Rub all together until filling is a delicate pink color. Spread on buttered slices thinly cut bread.

If for afternoon tea, serve from basket instead of plates.

"SAVE THE BABIES."

These are authentic quotations from the pamphlet on babies by Dr. L. Emmett Holt of Columbia University and Dr. Henry L. K. Shaw of Union University.

Regularity in bottle feeding is very important. Hold the bottle while the baby eats. After he eats place him up-right and pat his back to bring up the air he has swallowed.

Then place him in his crib, but don't rock him. Never play with him after his feeding. Don't let him suck an empty bottle. Don't let him sleep with the nipple in his mouth.

SUFFRAGISTS GATHER TO MAR WAR PROGRAM

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, March 1.—An army of representative women from all parts of the country descended upon the national capital today to help frame a war-time policy for suffragists and to take part in the huge suffrage demonstration at the White House next Sunday afternoon.

The question as to what part the suffragists shall play in event of war will be decided at the conventions of the Congressional Union and the National Woman's Party which open tonight. The proposed merger of these two powerful organizations of unenfranchised and voting women into one huge political organization also will be acted upon by the conventions.

Mrs. Harvey Wiley, Mrs. William Kent, wife of Congressman Kent, of California, Mrs. Helena Hill Wood, daughter of Congressman Hill, of Connecticut, and a number of other prominent Washington women have converted their own homes open to the visiting suffragists.

Garages and lofts have also been converted into dormitories to supply sleeping accommodations for some of the late arrivals.

Again for $1—While They Last

This Guaranteed Aluminum Cooker

The cost of Aluminum has doubled since we ordered these lifetime Cookers. At present prices, this offer would be impossible. So, in all probability, after our supply is exhausted, it cannot be made again.

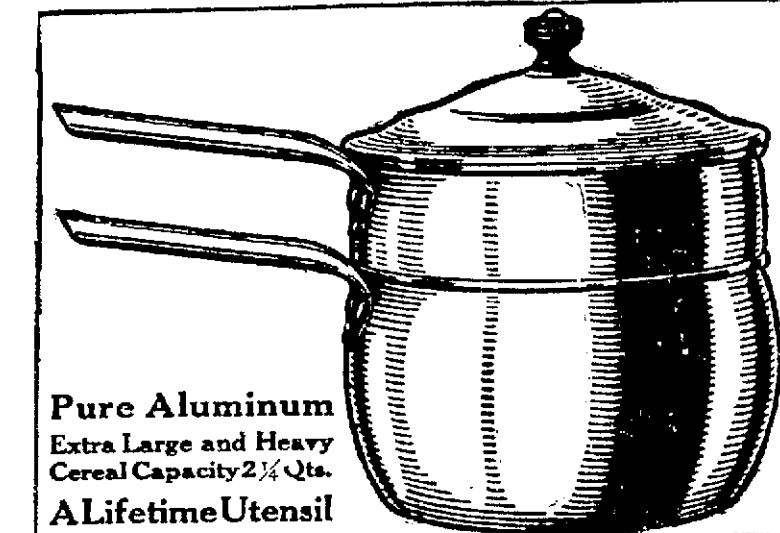

Next week the grocers of this city will once more feature this Quaker Cooker offer. And for the last time, we believe.

We have supplied Cookers now to over 1,000,000 homes. We have supplied these guaranteed Aluminum Cookers for $1 to Quaker Oats users. But this offer ends with our present supply, and probably forever. Unless Aluminum drops 50 per cent, we cannot again offer a Cooker like this for $1.

But next week only we make the offer below. You can get this Cooker for $1, by buying two of our cereals which should be cooked in it.

This offer is made to induce better cooking. To bring you Quaker Oats and Pettijohn's cooked in perfect form, with the flavor kept intact. Our reward will come in your doubled delight in these foods.

We ask the trademarks just to show that you use our cereals. Unless you have the right flakes, right cooking does not help much. But, if you use Quaker Oats and Pettijohn's, this cooker is yours for $1. This is for one week only. Get the packages from any grocer named below.

Quaker Oats

The Extra-Delicious Vim-Food Flaked from Queen Oats Only

All the world over Quaker Oats holds first place among oat foods. Oat lovers of a hundred nations send to us to get it. A billion dishes are consumed each year. Nowhere in the world do connoisseurs find any oat food to compare with it.

The reason is this: Quaker Oats is made from queen grains only—just the big, plump, luscious oats. No puny stunted grains are included. A bushel of the choicest oats yields only ten pounds of Quaker.

The result is a flavor which has won the world—a flavor which is matchless. Yet these large and luscious flakes cost you no extra price.

Nature stores in oats a wealth of vitality which everybody needs. We want you to know this fascinating vim-food, made as we make it and cooked in our way.

Pettijohn's

Rolled Wheat with 25% Bran Flakes A Modern Bran Dainty

Every doctor advises bran, as essential to right living. It is Nature's laxative. Everybody every day should eat it. It means better health, better spirits, sunnier days. Without it, our diet of fine food forces folks to drugs.

Pettijohn's is made to meet doctors' requirements. The bran is hidden in flaky flakes of wheat. The food is a morning dainty which everybody likes. Yet it contains 25 per cent tender bran.

The bran is in flake form, which makes it doubly efficient. Ground bran will not do.

Try Pettijohn's one week. Note its delightful effects. Never again will you go back to a branless diet.

Then try Pettijohn's Flour. It is 75 per cent fine patent flour mixed with 25 per cent bran flakes. Use it like Graham flour in any recipe.

Germ of Farm Prosperity

(Nature's Nitrogen Monopolist)

2 ALSIKE CLOVER

Where red clover fails, try alsike. Though slender and effeminate in appearance, it usually "delivers the goods."

Alsike is the "fair haired boy" of the trifolium family, but if anyone who imagines that this signifies weakness or incompetence as a nitrogen gatherer or protein furnisher, must guess again.

Like many other Wisconsin immigrants from Sweden, alsike clover is a splendid and economical farmer. It grows abundantly on even some "clover sick" soils, and within reasonable bounds, produces according to the moisture afforded it. Live stock relish alsike even better than they do other members of the clover group. On this point, the late Henry Wallace once said:

"The experienced cow or ewe prefers alsike forage to any other clover. It grows no hairs on the stems to fill the animal's mouth with ticklish dust, reminding the old brood mare with the heaves that another winter's tribulations are before her."

Wisconsin farmers who have tried alsike carefully under varying conditions have found among other things: That it grows best on moist loams and clays, and on land too wet for other clover crops to flourish.

That it does well on stiff clays underlain by a hard sub-soil.

That it is extremely resistant to unfavorable weather; is little affected by climate; almost insensible to cold; rarely injured by frosts; is seldom disturbed by heaving of soil; and on good land will endure for from four to six years.

Unlike red clover, alsike produces but one crop annually. Hence, it is either "cut it for hay or save it for seed." Both hay and seed cannot be obtained in one season.

According to the best practice, it requires at least nine pounds of pure high germinating seed to sow an acre with alsike. The root system of alsike clover is more shallow than medium red and the tap roots do not extend as deeply into the subsoil. It is said to attain its maximum development the second year after sowing. New shoots quickly appear after pasturing alsike clover fields. It "comes back" remarkably and is decidedly high in nutritive value.

Alsike grown for seed is profitable in Wisconsin, provided the land on which it is placed is reasonably free from weeds. This point is highly important, as many seedmen have learned that alsike clover may contain large quantities of noxious plant seeds, particularly those of Canada thistle. In fact, the situation has become so serious that dealers feel dubious about handling alsike from many sections.

Alsike is frequently paired with timothy in pastures. When this is desired for a period of two or three years, under the self-seeding plan, it gives excellent results. But as alsike and timothy seed are almost impossible to separate in mixtures, neither can be grown in this manner and sold as pure seed.

Wright, who supervised the demonstration plots at these places, says: "On sandy soils it possesses particular promise. Farmers in every case expressed considerable interest in the crop. As a soiling crop for cattle it proved successful. It should prove better than millet or timothy for hay."

SUDAN GRASS UNDER TEST IN WISCONSIN

Sudan grass, a member of the sorghum family, which, since its introduction from Africa, has made good in a large sense in certain parts of the United States, is being given a chance to show its usefulness as a forage crop in Wisconsin.

Will it make good? Opinions differ. Many farmers, some of whom probably sowed it too early in the season, do not feel that Sudan grass will ever be a success in this state. Others, on the warm, light, sandy soils of the southern part, who have planted it in rows between May 15 and June 1, report excellent results.

George B. Mortimer of the University of Wisconsin, who has charge of the co-operative tests with this "camel of the grass family" says there are a number of points in its favor. Sudan grass, he says, is easily cured, makes rapid growth, and is not as dusty and disagreeable to handle as some other hay crops. He believes that with later sowing of this crop farmers of the state will see greater returns. Its chief advantage, however, is its adaptability as a catch crop to supplement corn or cereal crops that have been injured at a date which makes replanting impracticable.

No nutrition tests have been recorded in Wisconsin with Sudan grass, but according to authentic reports from other places it is comparable to timothy in feeding value. Yields of three tons an acre are common under the right conditions.

Sudan grass was tried out on a number of asylum farms in the state this summer with varying results. A. H.

A Debated Question

By REV. L. W. GOSNELL
Superintendent of Men, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—Watch therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of Man cometh.—Matthew 25:12.

There has been much discussion as to the second coming of Christ. Many sincere Bible students do not seem able to reach a clear conviction on the subject. They are represented by an able and orthodox theologian who says:

"This is the one subject in systematic theology which I would gladly avoid were such a course possible in fairness, for the data are so dubious as to meaning in important places that I have been unable to reach such conclusions as amount to positive convictions." Such an expression of bewilderment should at least suggest the need of sympathy and patience in setting forth our views on this subject.

There are some things, however, which are evident. First of all, this theme has a prominent place in the New Testament, being referred to 308 times, or in one verse out of every 25. Again, the early church evidently thought her Lord might return at any time; if such an attitude were taken more than nineteen centuries ago, it would seem to be even more appropriate now.

Charles H. Spurgeon expresses himself in these sensible words: "Read for yourselves and search for your selves; for still this stands first and is the only thing I will insist upon—the Lord will come. He may come now; he may come tomorrow; he may come in the first watch of the night, or the second watch, or he may wait until the morning watch, but the one word he gives us all is, 'Watch! Watch! Watch!' that whenever he shall come, we may be ready to open to him, and to say, in the language of the hymn, Hallelujah!

Welcome, welcome, Judge divine!

"So far as I know we are scriptural and therefore perfectly safe in our statements about the Lord's second advent."

Waiting.

First, we are "to await for his Son from heaven" (I Thess. 1:10).

Let us wait hopefully. The Thessalonian Christians were troubled as to their dead friends, lest they should miss one of the glories of the kingdom to be set up when he returns. But Paul bids them in the fourth chapter of his first epistle, not to sorrow, for the Lord will bring their friends with him. He explains that the Lord shall descend from heaven and, the very first thing, will raise the sleeping saints; then he will catch them up in clouds, together with the living ones to meet him in the air, and so they shall be together, forever with the Lord. They are to comfort one another with these words.

Let us wait actively. St. Peter speaks of hastening the coming of the day of God (II Pe. 3:12 R. V. marg.). This we can do by being pure, living with our loins girt and laboring to extend the Kingdom. John Wesley once asked how he would spend the time if he knew he were to die that night. He replied: "How, madam? Why just as I intend to spend it now. I should preach this night at Gloucester, and again at five tomorrow morning; after that I should ride to Tewkesbury, preach in the afternoon and meet the societies in the evening. I should then repair to friend Martin's house, who expects to entertain me converse and pray with the family as usual, return to my room at ten o'clock, commend myself to my heavenly Father, lie down to rest and wake up in glory." Putting the coming of the Lord in the place of death we have here the correct attitude of the Christian.

Looking.

Another word is used in Titus 2:13: "Looking for that blessed hope and the appearing of the glory of our great God and Savior, Jesus Christ." This word, like the word "watch," expresses our earnest expectation of an event which may occur at any time. It is a favorite position with popular theologians today that Christ will never return to this earth. But even some who expect his return and expect it before the millennium tell us that certain events must occur before Christ can come back. Yet the one thing which seems to be made clear by the New Testament is the fact that Christ's coming may be at any time.

Loving.

The final word is found in II Timothy 4:8: "And not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." Holy Samuel Rutherford well expresses this attitude. He says, "I dare not challenge myself, but his absence is like a mountain of iron on my very heart. O, my Lord, come over the mountains at one stride! O time, run, run, and hasten the marriage day—for love is tormented with delays!" Reader, do you love his appearing?

ADVISED THE HOME FIRST

Pleasing Story That Is Related by Intimate Acquaintance of Late James J. Hill.

The Chicago banker who had intimate personal association with James J. Hill related a little incident which throws light on the character of that great railroad man and builder of civilization, says the Knickerbocker Press. Mr. Hill had commissioned the banker to perform a task which required a journey out of town. Here is the story:

"How soon do you want this, Mr. Hill?" said I.

"Right away," said he.

"I suppose he noticed a fleeting expression in my face, for he asked: 'What's the matter?'"

"Well," said I, "my family is across the lake, but that doesn't make any difference. I'll start in the morning, and—"

"Mr. Hill held up his right hand and said: 'Hold on. Let me give you a fact born of my long experience. All the real fun a fellow has in life is within the four walls that enclose his family. Go across the lake and see your family, and start on my job when you get through with the homelike.'" Here is something for the ambitious young man who has not yet got his bearings to paste in his hat. Few men have achieved so much as James J. Hill. Few have struggled against heavier odds or won success in so great measure. But home remained the chief thing in his life. That is a realization that comes to most men at some time or other. They are lucky who grasp it early.

LEATHER SHOULD BE "FED"

Librarian of Congress Tells How the Bindings of Books May Be Preserved.

An official of the Library of Congress was talking with a friend who had recently purchased a handsome set of leather-bound volumes.

"You had," said the expert, "better examine those books carefully to see whether the leather needs feeding. If it is new stock they will be all right if left alone for several years, but if they have been on the shelves for some time, the leather will have lost most of its natural oil and become brittle. This applies especially to books kept in private houses, which are, as a rule, much better than the book-stacks in large libraries. There is nothing more attractive than a fresh, well-preserved leather binding on a volume, and scarcely anything less so than a dilapidated, cracked one."

"You can add years to the life of a leather binding and 100 per cent to its appearance by rubbing a little vaseline with a piece of raw cotton—not too much—just as much as the leather will thoroughly absorb. Where the binding bends is where it is most likely to crack. The leather will not be greasy, as the vaseline will be absorbed. One treatment every year or two is sufficient, unless the books are unduly exposed to heat."

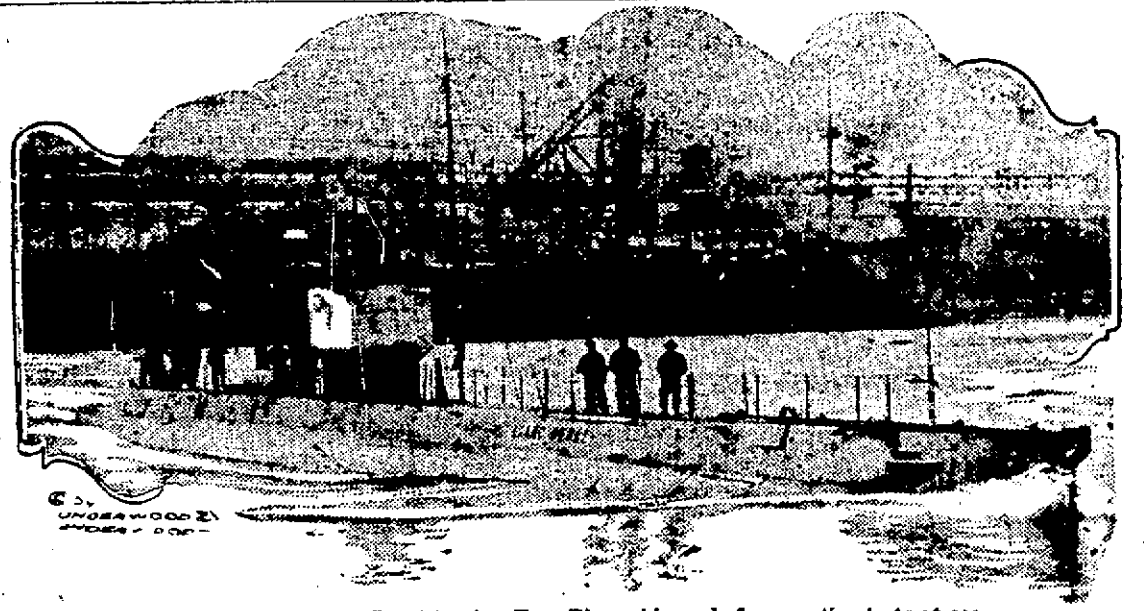

His Morning Run.

"I missed my regular morning exercise this morning."

"How was that?"

"The 7:35 was late, and I didn't have to run a step for it"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

MINNESOTA CHAMPS HAVE GREAT RECORD

Ascensions of Minneapolis, Who Play Cards Saturday, Have Won Sixteen Straight Games.

That the Cardinals will have to play real basketball if they are to defeat the Minneapolis Ascensions, champions of Minnesota, here Saturday night, is the belief of those who have watched the record of the quintet from Gopherville. Thus far this season the Ascensions have won sixteen straight games.

At the present it appears that practically the same lineup as that which put the skids under Rockford last week will start against the northerners. There may be one or two changes, but Mitchell and Knapp and Lewis and Pfeiffer will be on hand.

Tomorrow night the Ascensions meet the fast Port Washington five at that place. The Port team has been winning games right along this season and is another of the teams in line for the "state championship."

The Ascensions are making a big tour through Wisconsin and are meeting the strongest teams in the state. They appear to be able to play as good a game on strange floors as on their home court.

Manager Caldwell is expecting a record crowd Saturday night, as this is one of the big games of the season.

JONES BELIEVES THAT HE HAS FINE COMBINATION

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

St. Louis, March 1.—With several promising recruits to choose from as a tonie for his browns, Fiedler Jones will enter spring training this year with a much better prospect than a year ago. He will not have to contend with Federal leaguers, believed to be real ball players. He will have the benefit of a year's experience with the old browns. His selections are bound to be better than last spring.

Jones, silent as ever, ventured the assertion today that he will be in the flight.

"Of course, I'm hoping," he said, "but you know I never do make early predictions." In an offhand manner, he indicated that he has admitted defeat in his team. If he can get the right sort of a start, he thinks, the Browns will be hard to catch.

The infield struggle for St. Louis berks promises to be a thriller. There is a lot of dead wood hanging onto the brown coat-tails. Derrill Pratt and Jimmy Austin, guardians of second and third bases, respectively, will have to truck pretty fast to keep up with a pace that probably will be set by some youngsters.

Third base may see more action than second. Steven-on, Western league bash, and Rigler, from the St. Louis Cardinals, are expected to make things pretty interesting for Austin. Every year, however, things are made interesting for Austin in advance reports and he is still there. Rumors of the future this year also may be of the Wall Street leak kind. Jones declared the pennant was lost last year at third base, so Austin will have to show at his best.

Full Kenworthy, veteran minor league star and a former Federal leaguer, is going to have another fling at the majors. He will be given a shot at second base. Kenworthy is one of the most versatile players in the game. He has been known to catch and pitch with some skill. His utility powers probably will land him a steady job, even if he doesn't horn in ahead of Pratt.

Paulie will try hard to replace Sisler at first. He has a hard job in prospect. Lavin seems to have the scheduled position sewed up. Ernie Johnson, among the Federals still in the big ring, will make a try for it, but Doc Lavin is certain he'll stay.

Two cool catchers, Hale and White, will appear. It was the catching department that cost the St. Louis aggregation many games. The veterans, Severid and Hartley, were on the job, anxious to be in shape and keep the youngsters from taking their places.

Sloan, Jacobson and Yardley are the new faces in the outfield section, with Shotton, Marrasans and Miller back among the last year gardeners. Yardley is touted "mule" swatter and if he can bang them here he'll get on regular.

The pitching staff will get lots of attention from Fiedler, who hopes to make his hillcock performers the strongest in the Johnson circuit.

BUCKLEY, MINNESOTA END DISAPPEARS; SEARCH STARTS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Minneapolis, Minn., March 1.—The city police and university of Minnesota authorities are searching for Ed Buckley, end on the university football team last year, who disappeared from his home here recently. Friends are unable to give any reason for his disappearance. Buckley made an excellent showing last season and had been relied upon by Coach Williams to replace Bert Baston, all-American end, on the gopher eleven next fall.

Tears of sympathy shed for C. S. (Pop) Striver, who was said to have lost his savings of ten years in promoting baseball at Wheeling, may be dried. It is now announced that Pop has made a big money strike in oil and that his holdings may be worth six figures. His oil leases were in Kentucky.

JANESVILLE READY FOR BELOIT GAME

Coach Keck's Men in Fast Practices for Game Saturday Night at the Line City.

Long practices and stiff scrimmages have marked the work of the High School basketball team through the week in preparation for the game with their ancient and bitter rivals at Beloit on Saturday. Though the locals dropped one game to the Line City boys this season, their team work has improved wonderfully and with the experience of several fast games since the last Beloit contest, Coach Keck and his followers look for a victory.

Enthusiasm over the coming game at the High School is great, and already a large number of students have signified their intention of taking in the game, which is scheduled at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium in Beloit for eight o'clock Saturday evening. Janesville has fared pretty well in keeping most of her men off the ranks of the scholastic intelligible consistent team work, accurate basket-shooting, and the short pass game are features which Coach Keck has been beating into his men in practice of late.

A summary of the last six seasons shows that though Beloit has won one more game than the local team, Janesville has far outscored their rivals, totalling 306 points against Beloit's 213. Janesville's victories have for the most part been decisive, whereas Beloit has triumphed in many cases by but a margin of one or two points.

In last year's games, three Beloit victories were gained by a lead of but one point.

Indications now are that there will be from one hundred and fifty to two hundred local rooters at Beloit Saturday, to cheer their team into a win from the down-river rivals.

BADGERS PREPARED FOR CHICAGO GAME

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., March 1.—Final scrimmage drill for the University of Wisconsin basketball team will be held this evening for the game with Chicago on Saturday evening. Dr. Meek will put his men through a hard workout Wednesday and will put the finishing touches on the men Thursday. The Badger coach realizes the speed of the Chicago team and is making no effort on his part to have his men returned the victor.

The same lineup which faced Illinois will be used against Chicago. Olsen will start at the one forward for a certainty while the other forward man is undecided. McIntosh has been playing the position most of the time during drills and is expected to start. Bauer, Carroll and Hemming will get into the game at that place. Chandler will start at center. The all-conference, man of last year, is going to be tried heavily. Meyers will play the running guard with Carlson at the standing guard.

A large number of students will accompany the team to witness the game. The Chicago alumni of the Badger institution have planned a big celebration for the team and its followers. In the afternoon, the performance of "Hip, Hip, Hooryay" at the Auditorium. "Red" Parker, famous Wisconsin cheer leader, will be the Detroit American pep for the game in the evening.

The team will leave Madison Saturday morning arriving in Chicago at noon. Ten men will make the trip in addition to Coach Meek, and Manager William Lester. The men who will go are Captain Olsen, Carlson, Chandler, Meyers, McIntosh, Hemming, Bauer, Edler, Simpson and Carroll.

With the announcement by the Philadelphia National League club recently that Charles Albert Bender, the pitcher, had been given his unconditional release, nearly every dian of note has been ushered out of the ranks of major league baseball. Bender is reported to have offers from the Columbus, Indianapolis and Kansas City clubs of the American Association.

"Chief" John Hootes Meyers is said to be on the verge of a break with the champion Brooklyn Dodgers and many National league authorities figure the Mission warrior has about run his course as a big leaguer. Ben Tincup, another Indian, who for several seasons was on the payroll of the Phillies, is in the minors, and Jim Bluegash, routed two or three years ago as the hope of the redskins to keep them represented in the big show, failed with the Federal league and has been lost to sight. Jim Thorpe will be on hand with the Giants this year, but the former world champion amateur athlete is considered to have a slim chance of earning a regular berth with the New York Nationals. The close of the coming season may find both major leagues minus the services of a single original American.

Shouldering arms and bats will be synonymous on the country's diamonds this season. This was the statement made by President B. F. Johnson of the American league after he had received a long telegram from Capt. T. L. Huston of the New York Yankees, in which the latter outlined plans discussed with an officer of Gen. Leonard A. Wood's staff. The training of ball players has been taken up with enthusiasm by the war department, and it is quite likely that drill sergeants will be assigned to each American league team during the spring practice, and this will be continued during the summer.

Major Dorey of General Wood's staff is handling the arrangements from the New York end. The major happens to be a baseball fan and that's the reason why training will be reciprocal. The army is not going to let any opportunity like this pass by without getting some benefits in return for the drills. Consequently officers will be assigned to the teams who have more than a passing interest in the national game, and when the training period is over not only will the ball players be ready to step into the trenches but the drill sergeant will have absorbed a lot of inside baseball. Thus it will come to pass that the ball players will know the why and wherefores of the war, and the regulars will in due time learn that it won't do to sacrifice with two out.

"As it is our national game you might make it official," was the comment of President Johnson after he had digested the plan of Captain Huston. "The army by assigning drill officers who know the game of baseball will in turn be benefited, and they can then teach the regulars the scientific end of the game when they return to the ranks. The ball players, on the other hand, will more readily adapt themselves to military discipline under an officer who not only knows the arts of war but is acquainted with sport itself."

Wid Conroy, veteran infielder, who failed to land the position of manager of the Norfolk team of the Virginia league, is still open for a job. Conroy had much success as manager at Elmira in the New York state league, but concluded he had been there too long, while doubts that Elmira would be able to finance a team impelled him to look elsewhere.

The Shannon twins who doubled up at New Haven last year and made Manager Danny Murphy a lot of trouble, have been separated and may work better that way. Indeed, Maurice Shannon goes to Baltimore, and Outfielder Joe Shannon will remain with New Haven. The New Haven club gets a young infielder named Irwin in exchange for Maurice.

Dan Sheehan, who has drawn pay from both the Phils and Athletics, is going to try to prove that he is another Cravah. Dave has been in the minors five years or more, but next season he will try to do a comeback. Christy Mathewson, though, Sheehan from the International league and declared he would succeed Heinie Groh as the Reds' second baseman. Groh will be switched to short. Shean is an agile, intelligent player who ought to make good. He is not much beyond the thirty-year mark and should last for several more seasons. Pat Moran tried to do a year ago, but the deal fell through. More than one sharp has gone on record as saying that Shean should never have been permitted to drift to the minors.
